AGENDA ITEM WORDING: Approval of an interlocal agreement with the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission authorizing a gambian rat pilot eradication project on Crawl Key.

ITEM BACKGROUND: Gambian rats are large rodents native to Africa. A number of these rats being bred in captivity on Grassy Key have escaped and established breeding colonies on Grassy and Crawl Keys. The introduction of exotic species into the Keys environment risks adverse impacts to native species and the transmission of disease. The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission requests the County's authorization to conduct a pilot eradication program for this rat species on County property on Crawl Key. The eradication project will utilize baited traps and monitoring cameras and will be conducted in cooperation with the US Department of Agriculture.

Gambian Rat Pilot Eradication Project

Gambian rats (GR) are large rodents native to Africa, weighing an average of 3 pounds and measuring 20-35 inches from the head to the tip of the tail. They were bred in captivity on Grassy Key, north of Marathon. Around five years ago, eight rats escaped and have established a reproducing population. GR primarily eat fruit and grains, but they have been known to eat insects, crabs and snails. If GR reach and become established on mainland Florida, there is potential for substantial agricultural crop damage and damage to native species and ecosystems. This species is also demonstrated to be a vector of a number of serious diseases.

The Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission (FWC), in conjunction with USDA/APHIS Wildlife Services (WS), is seeking funding to eradicate this population of exotic rats. Pending legislative approval, this project would begin in fall 2006. In the interim, FWC has received a $20,000 grant to conduct a pilot eradication project. These funds will be matched by WS. The pilot study is planned for Crawl Key in March-April 2006. The study design involves (1) baseline abundance survey using remote cameras; (2) deploying bait stations and rodent toxicants, specifically zinc phosphide; (3) follow-up abundance survey to assess effectiveness of eradication. We request authorization to access Crawl Key property for the purpose of conducting this study.

Bait stations have been specifically designed to exclude the vast majority of non-target wildlife by the size of the entrance (see photos next page). We anticipate that some black rats (also an exotic species) will be killed. There is also a possibility that a small number of juvenile raccoons and possums will be affected. The toxicant will be mixed with peanut butter and oats, which does not attract cats or dogs; the size of the entrance would prevent consumption by household pets.

Based on prior experience with black rats, WS recommends deploying bait stations with 40 meter spacing. Because the GR population may be at a lower density than black rat infestations, FWC and WS wish to test different bait station densities on the smaller area of Crawl Key. Approximately 100 bait stations will be placed in a 50-meter grid. Remote cameras will record any GR activity for 2-3 days at bait stations with no toxicant. Zinc phosphide will then be added to the bait stations, which will be monitored daily for an additional 10 days. A second round of photographs will be used to assess the effectiveness of the project.

Thank you for your consideration.
